Jonathan Ducourt

Director of sales

Since 1858, our family has been producing wine in the Bordeaux region. From generation to generation, we have passed down pride in a job well done, respect for the land, and an entrepreneurial spirit. Today, we cultivate 400 hectares of vineyards across 13 estates located in the Entre-Deux-Mers and Saint-Émilion appellations, while maintaining 200 hectares of forests, lakes, and meadows — a reflection of our commitment to preserving the balance between wine production and biodiversity.

Mélanie Haguenin
Vigneronne

Mélanie and Thomas Schmid-Haguenin produce craft wines in small quantities in a 5-hectare 19th-century winery, recently renovated by the family.

Several cuvées of dry red wine, including samples of Merlot, Cabernet Franc, and Malbec grape varieties, as well as a Bordeaux claret (dark, tasty rosé) and a rosé pét-nat, are available.

Our distinctive approach is to harvest manually, to ferment with naturally present yeasts, and to add as few sulphites as possible while guaranteeing a stable wine.

Jaime Rioja

CEO

Pago de Tharsys is a boutique winery in Requena, Valencia (Spain), specialising in Cava with long ageing periods. Although relatively unknown to the general public, Requena is a special place to make sparkling wines, situated at 750 metres above sea level with a continental climate. We have unique soils, mostly limestone, and an ecosystem that has led to our recognition with our own Pago appellation (the highest D.O. recognition in Spain). We also produce terroir-driven still wines within our own appellation.
